DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

3. The language "ionic liquid" is indefinite. Liquid is a state of matter which dependent upon conditions. In the absence of conditional limitations, the language is meaningless.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Angell et al. US 5,962,169.
6. The patent shows ionic compounds incorporated into rubber systems at column 5 lines 23+. The liquid ionic compound is anticipated by column 8 lines 31+.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

7. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

8. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

9. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kitano et al. US 6,810,225.

10. This patent shows the ionic compounds claimed at column 8 lines 48 to column 9 lines 34. The use of the ionic substances in rubber compounds is suggested at column 8 lines 27-46. The difference between this disclosure and the claims is the use of the ionic compounds as liquids. The use of the compounds in liquid form is not seen to be expressly directed by the patent. The patent is seen to be generic to the liquid ionic compounds of rather the use of the ionic compound in a liquid or solvated form. It would be obvious to use the ionic compound in liquid form because one would have a reasonable expectation of the results.

11. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Angell et al. US 5,962,169 or Takashima et al. US 6,458,883 each taken in view of Michot et al. US 6,841,304.

12. The primary references show the claimed rubber compositions having incorporated therein ionic compounds, see column 5-6 of Angell et al. and columns 5-6 of Takashima et al. The difference between the claims and these patents is seen to be the species of ionic compounds and the use of the ionic compounds in liquid form. The Michot et al. patent more clearly teaches the ionic species of claims 2 and 3 and their use in liquid form. It would be obvious to use these ionic systems in the primary references given that one of ordinary skill would reasonably expect the result.
